Succumbs In Fullerton Hospital; Brother Of Local Player

Football claimed its first fatality in Orange county today, with the death of John Ochoa, 17, prominent Anaheim high school athlete, who passed away in the Cottage Hospital, Fullerton, at 11:25 a. m. at the result of a head injury sustained in a game at Riverside last night.

Young Ochoa, star quarterback, was reported to be knocked unconscious in a head-on collision with Riverside players, although the injury was not believed to be serious. He was taken to the Cottage hospital at 1 a. m.

The victim's brother, Frank Ochoa, is a reserve fullback on Santa Ana Junior college's squad. Other survivors include his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Ochoa, who recently established their home in Hollywood.

IT WASN'T A PLANE CRASH!

Laguna Alarm Proves False

Floating debris from a motion picture set at Thru Arches, or possibly a lobster trap float, is believed to have been responsible for a call that brought a coast guard cutter from San Pedro and a navy plane from San Diego today to search for a plane reported as having crashed into the ocean, south of Laguna Beach.

Shortly after 8 a. m. today a woman, name unknown, telephoned to Chief of Police Abe Johnson of Laguna Beach and reported the wreckage of an airplane floating in the ocean. Chief Johnson notified Schuyler R. Voorhes, United States weather observer, who in turn put out the

Famed Engineer in Laguna Shuns Publicity But Wants Village Street Unmolested

By ROCH BRADSHAW

"No, I don't care for any publicity," Spencer Miller went on pounding nails into a crate perched on the front porch rail of his Laguna Beach home. The decisive blows of his hammer drove his words neatly through my brain and clinched them on the other side.

It was an odd beginning for an afternoon in which a grizzled engineer and an inquisitive reporter were to experience something like a miracle.

Leaning against a post, I watched him drive more nails into the crate that had an object inside it wrapped in cloth covered with a flower design. He pushed his gray hat back on his head, picked out another nail and started it on its way. This was the man who perfected the overhead cableway system used

Final Campaign Planned As Goal Missed By First Effort

Santa Ana's Community Chest leaders will meet Tuesday to plan a final campaign for reaching their goal of $32,225. Last night at the final report meeting for volunteer workers held in connection with a Chest dinner at the Y. W. C. A., the total pledged so far was reported as $25,250.40.

W. K. Hillyard, president of the Chest organization, said last night at the dinner that he believes at least $5000 more can be raised. The total this year is approximately $1000 larger than that of last year and was pledged by 2762 subscribers, about 100 more than last year.

The amounts reported by the various divisions were as follows: Advance gifts, headed by W. B. Williams and W. D. Ramsey, 291 pledges, $14,619.50; branch house division, headed by Harold Wright, (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 2)

PLANE FORCED DOWN ON SEA

LONG BEACH, Oct. 12 (AP)—A navy plane, experiencing motor trouble, came down on the ocean early this morning near Huntington Beach, but was able to get away and fly toward the fleet.

Fred Ott, former life guard at Huntington Beach, said he informed the coast guard of the plane at sea, apparently adrift, and that he was able to distinguish a red mark on its wing. He said it later got away.

information in the state-wide telephone operated from his office. Police and other searchers were unable to contact anyone who had even seen an airplane over the Laguna Beach area at the time the crash is supposed to have occurred. After circling the area for several hours the navy plane and the cutter departed for their bases.

High tide last night washed considerable debris from an old film set left on the beach, into the ocean. This wreckage became entangled in the float of a lobster pot and was first discovered by the fisherman when he went to tend his traps.

CITRUS HOUSE HEADS BACK GRADELAW

Managers Assert Tubbs And Inspectors Are Not Unreasonable

ALL FAVOR CHECK Some Desire Stricter Act To Guard Market From Bad Fruit

Orange packing house managers not only stand squarely behind Agricultural Commissioner D. W. Tubbs in enforcing the law against shipping granulated fruit, but many of them believe the regulations should be even more strict.

The Journal today sounded out a number of managers in view of the attack made at a Garden Grove farm center meeting Thursday night by E. J. Smale, manager of the Garden Grove Mutual Orange association. Mr. Smale said the law was vicious and criticized Mr. Tubbs as being too technical in his enforcement of it, particularly in border line cases.

"Tries To Be Fair" The law allows a maximum of 10 per cent of a shipment to show granulation, or drying out.

Mr. Tubbs, when asked for a statement by The Journal today, said that his office has tried to be fair and impartial in enforcing the law and that he does not believe his inspectors have been arbitrary in the matter.

"Mr. Tubbs has been very fair," said Robert Gross, manager of the Santa Ana Orange Groves association at Orange. "I think he's stayed right with the law. That's what he's there for. He has enforced the law and has been impartial in doing it."

Explains Laws Mr. Gross explained that the intent of the law is really to prevent any granulated fruit at all from being shipped. The 10 per cent tolerance limit has been adopted, he said, to allow for human error in grading. Mistakes are bound to occur, he said, and the law allows 10 per cent, but it (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 4)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12 (AP)—Southern California motorists checked their fuel tanks today, expecting a price jump of 2 cents, as gas prices would rise 2 cents today or Monday.

Envoy Barricades Self, Refuses to Quit Addis Ababa

By JAMES A. MILLS

Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 12.—Emperor Haile Selassie granted the Italian minister, Luigi Vince-Gigliucci, a time extension of 20 hours today within which to leave the country after the minister had barricaded himself in the legation in defiance of the ruler's orders to quit the capital immediately.

The King of Kings extended his ultimatum from 11 a. m. today to 7 a. m. tomorrow, but announced that if the Italian minister failed to leave then, he would be expelled.

His military attaché had barricaded himself in the Italian legation with the minister.

Ethiopian government officials said the Italian minister was deliberately trying to create an incident by compelling Ethiopian troops to invade his legation and drag him out.

Later in the day, however, just what Vince's position might be became more obscure. It was reported possible that the emperor might not insist upon his departure tomorrow but might grant a respite.

At 5:50 p. m. Vince was permitted to leave the legation, where he had been a virtual prisoner, and was conducted to the home of Ras Desta Damtew, a son-in-law of the emperor.

As he moved, he was preceded and followed by Ethiopian troops. Although the Italian minister was given every luxury at Damtew's home, he refused to receive his diplomatic colleagues.

They said they feared that such action would give Premier Mussolini a pretext for saying Italian sovereignty had been violated.

Selassie Enraged Emperor Haile Selassie was enraged by the diplomat's action and immediately ordered the legation surrounded by troops and the telephone lines and private radio stations cut off.

Vince-Gigliucci was virtually incommunicado with even his diplomatic colleagues excluded.

Vince-Gigliucci put on a first-class comedy-drama which authoritative sources said might have serious international consequences.

Defying the emperor's ultimatum, he refused to leave but sent (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

Move To Cut Italy Off World Payroll Taken By Committee

GENEVA, Oct. 12 (AP)—The financial sub-committee of the League of Nations general staff for sanctions today took the first definite step toward cutting Italy off the world payroll.

It decided to recommend the immediate discontinuance of all loan and bank credits to Mussolini's government. In addition it appointed a sub-committee headed by Demetrios Maximos, of Greece, to consider further steps in that direction.

In view of yesterday's unanimity on the arms embargo, it is regarded in league circles as a foregone conclusion that the committee's recommendation will be adopted by the fully represented general staff committee.

The financial sub-committee voted that the basis of the formal resolution for the financial isolation of Italy should forbid the following:

1. Opening of credit to Italy in any foreign country.
2. Authorization of a public issue by Italy in foreign countries.
3. Authorization of a public issue by an individual or legal entity national of Italy or of either acting as an intermediary in one of the league's states.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMIES, Aduwa, Ethiopia, 11:30 a. m. today, Oct. 12.—Italy will formally annex this capital of the rich Tigre province tomorrow.

(This would appear to dispose effectively of a report yesterday that Aduwa had been recaptured by Ethiopian forces.)

Italian flags fluttered all along the streets of Aduwa in preparation for the ceremony of annexation.

White Natives' Flags Side by side with the tricolor flew the white flags raised by the native population at the approach of the invading troops last week. The formal rites of annexation will be conducted in the presence of Gen. Emilio De Bono, commander of the advancing Italian armies.

Aduwa, which was the scene of an Italian defeat 40 years ago by powerful Emperor Menelik, was completely submissive to Italian rule today.

The abuna or bishop of Aduwa ordered his church prepared for a copious mass of Thanksgiving which Gen. De Bono himself will attend tomorrow.

Ethiopian chieftains from outlying districts flocked into town in the expectation of meeting the commanding general.

Government Surrenders Local Italian staff officers rejoiced at the news that Dedjazmach (general) Haile Selassie Gussa, the governor of Makale province, had surrendered to the Italians.

General De Bono was on his way to Aduwa today from his field headquarters. He cannot arrive until tomorrow because of the state of the roads.

Officers said he would have to travel on muleback several miles. He will pass through the same territory he covered when a young lieutenant during the campaign of 1895, which ended in disaster for Aduwa.

Italian officers believe that the surrender of Dedjazmach Haile Selassie Gussa and Degiag Kassa Araiia, with 15,000 riflemen, has opened the way to Makale.

As a result they expect the end (Please Turn to Page 2, Col. 3)

BRIDE OF THREE WEEKS FOUND ALMOST DECAPITATED IN HOTEL

MAN IS ALSO QUAKES SHAKE MONTANA! DISCOVERED IN ROOM

Undertaker, With Arms Slashed, Held; Dead Girl Is Only 21

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—A bride of three weeks, Mrs. Willie Mae Wood, was found almost decapitated in a hotel room here today with W. H. Reaguer, 50, Culpepper, Va., undertaker, who had slashed his arms and wrists with a pocket knife.

The dead girl was the wife of Herbert R. Wood, employee of the Virginia highway department and resident of Fairfax county. Authorities said her throat had been cut with a small pocket knife.

Held For Inquest
Reaguer was taken to emergency hospital for first aid treatment and then transferred to another hospital and held under guard pending a coroner's inquest. In the adjoining hotel room police found Mrs. Wood's cousin, Anna O'Brien, 17-year-old student at a business college here.

Prior to her marriage at Rockville, Md., Sept. 26, Mrs. Wood was Miss Willie Mae Fletcher. She was the daughter of a tenant farmer living near Culpepper. Reaguer was married and the father of two married daughters.

Friend Of Family
Seeking to learn the motive for the slaying, police questioned Wood at length. They learned only that Mrs. Wood who was 21 years old, and Reaguer had been friendly before the Woods were married. Police said Reaguer brought Mrs. Wood and her young cousin, Anna, to Washington last night and registered at the hotel as "Mr. Thomas and family, Richmond, Va."

Miss O'Brien told police she knew nothing of what happened in Reaguer's room.

Wood told officers he knew Reaguer only slightly but assumed his wife had known him "most all her life" since both were from Culpepper.

Mr. Avila also reported that Filipino organizations in Los Angeles, and the Santa Maria and Imperial valleys have decided to join with Mexican groups in a move for higher wages.

QUAKES SHAKE MONTANA! Chimneys Topple In Helena

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 12. (AP)—A series of earthquakes in Montana early today hurled chimneys into the streets of Helena, toppled goods from store shelves, broke plaster from walls and broke windows but apparently did no major damage.

A check of physicians and hospitals indicated that no persons had been hurt and the fire department said that no fires had resulted.

The first shock, lasting about five seconds, occurred at 12:51 a. m., and was followed by several lesser shocks within a 10-minute interval. Half an hour later two more distinct shocks occurred.

Great Falls and Butte also felt the shock of the main quake, but reported no damage.

WILLARD LOSES FEAR DISASTER IN NICARAGUA
After winning the annual fire drill contest for three years in a row, the Francis Willard Junior High school was defeated this week by the Julia Lathrop Junior High school in competition sponsored by the chamber of commerce.

The Lathrop score was 92 and that of Willard was 89. Lathrop's time for clearing the buildings of students was 62 seconds while Willard's was 66 seconds.

John Henderson, who assisted Chairman Harry Hanson of the chamber's fire prevention committee, explained today that the drill is graded on the promptness and orderliness of exit, care of ill or crippled students, keeping lines clear of buildings, having principals at proper stations, opening and closing exit doors properly and condition of alarm systems. The condition of the plants, and instruction on fire prevention also figure in the final grade.

The Willard school last year gained permanent possession of a fire drill cup, after winning it three times. There was no trophy up for competition this year.

CITRUS PACT FIGHT DUE

Opponents Of Marketing Agreement Scheduled At L. A. Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12. (AP)—Opponents of the proposed federal marketing program for California and Arizona citrus prepared today for resumption of a joint federal state hearing Monday.

Major Albert D. Hadley, department of agriculture representative and chairman of the commission, which began its hearing here last Wednesday, invited independent growers and shippers to present opposition arguments section by section.

The presentation of favoring views was concluded yesterday with T. H. Powell, general sales manager of the California Fruit Growers exchange, declaring for regulation.

Taking issue, however, with some previous testimony, Mr. Powell said California and Arizona should be considered as a single producing area, asserting the fruit is similar in maturity and is sold in the same markets.

He praised the present marketing agreement as increasing the return to the grower, besides benefiting consumers and labor. He said 200,000 residents of the two states were dependent on the citrus industry.

Bruce L. Moore, Upland, testified that he believed oranges and grapefruit would be regulated jointly, while W. C. McDavid, Phoenix, with the written support of 180 Arizona growers, asked for recognition of the state as a separate producing area.

MORE ABOUT CITRUS LAW

is expected to keep all granulated fruit off the market.

He said that where there is a border line case in which 11 or 12 per cent of the fruit is granulated, it is possible to regrade down to the required 10 per cent and that Mr. Tubbs is not unreasonable in insisting that this be done.

Wants It More Strict
Frank Finley, manager of the Olive Hillside groves, said that "Mr. Tubbs and his deputies are doing exactly the right thing, and if the law were still more drastic, it would please me better still. We haven't had any difficulty at all with his deputies and have cooperated to the fullest extent. It isn't proper to crowd right up to the limit of tolerance."

Mr. Finley said that packing house managers on the whole favor even stricter clamping down on granulation.

Ernest Whipp, manager of the Garden Grove Citrus association, said that at a managers' meeting yesterday all were agreed that the law should be as it is.

"We've found inspection very fair and have no criticism to make. Our exchange standards are more strict than the state law."

Mr. Whipp said that Mr. Tubbs had "not been unreasonable."

"In cases where fruit has been found to be slightly above the tolerance, we have always had the privilege of regrading it down to the 10 per cent limit, and the inspectors have been very fair."

Robert Strain, manager of the American Fruit Growers packing house at Fullerton, said "I'm in favor of Mr. Tubbs' stand on holding packing houses to the limit of tolerance. It seems to me it would be a very wrong thing to let the bars down on tolerance. He has not been unreasonable."

Mr. Strain said that in a year when there was a short crop and a high price it might be advisable to lift the tolerance limit slightly, but in a year like this with a heavy crop it should be enforced right up to the limit.

Tubbs Explains Methods
Mr. Tubbs, when requested for a statement, said, "I have made many inspections at bins prior to the time the fruit was packed, and in all such cases advised managers, if tests showed excessive defects, that they should regrade before packing. In practically all cases in which we have had to file complaints, the fruit was considerably beyond the tolerance allowed."

his pet leopard on the special train to Djibouti, French Somaliland, provided by Haile Selassie.

After barricading himself in his legation, the minister announced dramatically that he could not leave until the last Italian consular agent recalled from the interior had been accounted for.

The emperor's troops waited outside the legation ready to seize Vinciguicci forcibly in the event Haile Selassie so ordered. At noon, the minister was still beleaguered.

Throughout the morning, Vinciguicci played a game of hide and seek not only with the Ethiopian government but with the diplomatic corps, members of which were indignant when the Italian minister failed to turn up at the station after they waited for him three hours under the scorching sun.

All this time, however, Vinciguicci was secure and serene in the legation.

One reason given for the minister's refusal to go was that the enormous sums of Ethiopian silver thalers in the legation which he was unable to take out of the country.

Hurts Defy In Letter
In a defiant letter to the Ethiopian government, written by his own hand, the Italian envoy declared:

"I am staying of my own free will despite the insistence of the authorities that I leave, awaiting the arrival of the two members of the Magalo consulate. I also declare I submit freely to any measures the government may take against me."

The military attaché, Colonel Carderini, joined the minister in his refusal to depart, but other legation officials left by special train for Djibouti, French Somaliland.

After Vinciguicci refused to leave, the entire native staff of the Italian legation went voluntarily to Emperor Haile Selassie and offered to enroll in the Ethiopian army. The emperor accepted their services.

Meanwhile Ethiopian impression was that it was now necessary to prepare for a long war with Italy, probably lasting for years.

Members of the financial committee said they had been accepted as the basis of financial sanctions against Italy with the understanding that they would be applied progressively.

PLAN VISITS TO SEWAGE PLANT

Plans for demonstrations at the sewage reclamation plant, First and Sullivan streets, Santa Ana, are being announced in letters sent out by R. D. Flaherty, executive secretary of the Orange county farm bureau.

The letters are being sent to every service club, farm center and chamber of commerce in the county.

Mr. Flaherty said the plant will be open for demonstrations sometime next week. The committee in charge of the experiment will meet Tuesday and assign days for the various clubs and organizations to visit the plant. Members of this committee are George Bates, chairman, Ross Shafer and Ralph McFadden.

In addition to inviting the various clubs and organizations to visit the reclamation plants, Mr. Flaherty is informing them that speakers will be available to attend meetings and explain the purpose of the experimental plant and work accomplished to date.

HAT THROWN BY INLAND MAN

The congressional picture in the nineteenth district was showing signs of animation today. Joseph Seymour, democratic attorney of Riverside, in Santa Ana yesterday, said he was considering entering the race for the Bourbon nomination.

Mr. Seymour favors payment of the soldiers' bonus with sound money, an adequate tariff on citrus fruit, the Townsend old age pension plan and preservation of states' rights. He does not favor radical changes in the constitution, explaining that it can be amended in the regular manner if necessary.

CHURCH BOASTS GOOD CHOIR

Developing musical phases of the Episcopal church of the Messiah services, Halstead McCormack, outstanding organist of Santa Ana, has recently organized a full choir with an exceptional quartet for the church.

Louis Silva, Los Angeles, will give the tenor solo selections of Sunday's morning service at the church. His selections will be the "Festival Te Deum," by Dudley Buck, and "Sanctus" from the "St. Cecilia Mass," by Gounod.

For those who delight in organ music, Sunday vespers services at 4:40 p. m. have 10-minute pre-udes of organ music by Mr. McCormack. The vespers service, together with the recital, lasts an hour. Mr. McCormack tomorrow will play Rheinberger's "Theme and Variations," "Pastorale" and "Choral Prelude," by Bach, and "Festival Toccata," by Fletcher.

TEXAS MISSIONARY OPENS REVIVAL HERE TOMORROW

Phil Kerr, Texas evangelist and gospel song composer, will begin a series of revival meetings tomorrow in the Christian and Bishop streets. His opening service at 11 a. m. will feature a sermon on the subject, "When a Song Beat the Devil." Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock he will preach on "A Storm at Sea." Young people of the church are sponsoring the campaign and all Santa Ana young people are given an invitation to attend.

Evangelist Kerr has traveled in all parts of the United States, in Canada, Mexico and Cuba. He has composed more than 400 gospel songs and has broadcast through more than 100 radio stations.

Many of his songs were composed publicly, from themes suggested by the audience, a unique feat which is duplicated by only two other men in America. It is said.

In the past 12 months, Mr. Kerr has preached in Florida, Louisiana, Texas, Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Colorado and California. He has just concluded a campaign in San Diego.

Sermon subjects for next week have been announced as follows: Monday night, "The Cock-Eyed World." Tuesday night, "Stuck in the Mud." Wednesday night, "The Big Fight." Thursday night, "Fire." Friday night, "Elijah in the Whale."

NEGRO SINGERS TO FEATURE SERVICES

A new series of sermons and special music by a group of Negro singers will feature the service at the Unitarian church tomorrow.

"The Buchanans," the family of the Rev. James Buchanan, African Methodist minister from Pasadena, will preface the sermon with a group of gospel hymns.

The sermon, "What Do Unitarians Put in Place of Infallible Scriptural Authority?" will be the first of a series of four addresses in reply to a question often asked of religious liberals, "What Do You Give in Place of What You Take Away?"

In turn, the series will treat of the Bible, of heaven and hell, of trust in a dying Saviour, and of belief in the Lord God Jehovah.

In the junior fellowship a special kindergarten subject will open under the guidance of Miss Patricia Allen. The poetry of the autumn season and its meaning in the order of nature will be the background of the project.

METHODISTS OF COUNTY RALLY

Rallying from Methodist churches throughout Orange county, several hundred persons are expected to gather at the First Methodist church for a banquet next Wednesday evening at 6:30 o'clock when James C. Baker, bishop of the Southern California conference, pays an official visit here.

The affair is being sponsored by the Dorcas society and the church Brotherhood. Tickets have been distributed to residents of the city.

The bishop is to speak on "Interpretations of My Trip Through Europe This Summer with Sherwood Eddy."

Community singing will be led by A. J. Rutter, and special musical numbers will be presented.

CROWDS INCREASE AT REVIVAL MEET

Revival services for increasingly large crowds are being conducted now at the Church of God in Santa Ana Gardens, according to the Rev. John H. Pemberton.

Miss Charlotte Rodgers, evangelist, is in charge of the services held every night at 7:30 o'clock except Monday. A fellowship meeting will be conducted at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

Soprano Is on Abbey Hour

Ruth Erbe, soprano of Costa Mesa, will be featured as soloist on the regular Musical Memory hour program at Melrose Abbey Sunday afternoon. The Carillon string trio composed of Faye Spicer, violin; Rose Marie Flint, viola; and Audrey Pieper, organist, together with Harry Warner, organist at the United Presbyterian church of Santa Ana, will contribute to this program.

Ruth Erbe has chosen to sing "Ninety-First Psalm" (MacDermid); "Like as a Father" (Scott); and "Hark! Hark! My Soul" (MacDermid).

The selections by the Carillon trio are all by well known composers. "Nina" (Pergolesi-Kreisler); "Farewell to Cucullin," an old Irish melody by Kreisler; "Serenade" (Toselle), and "The Swan" (Saint-Saens) have been chosen.

Mr. Warner has been heard a number of times on Musical Memory hour programs. His selections will be "The Pilgrim Chorus" from Tannhauser (Wagner); "Alpine Pastoral" (Flagler); "Softly and Tenderly," a hymn transposition; and "Air Du Role," Louis XIII, by Ghyf.

The public is invited to all programs at Melrose Abbey, located on the 101 highway between Santa Ana and Anaheim. Programs begin promptly at 3 o'clock.

THIS is Fire Prevention Week in Laguna Beach.
But residents aren't able to become very excited about it. The reason is that Fire Chief P. J. Bushman reports that the total loss so far this year totals $615.
Who dropped the cigarette in pop's easy chair? Or maybe Mrs. Jones burned her ironing board when she stepped across the alley to borrow another egg for Saturday night's angel food cake.
Anyway, it couldn't have been much of a fire. And we hear that all the fire insurance big-wigs take notice when it comes to estimating insurance rates for next year.

As yet there's been no move to disband the fire department. If they did that, the whole town'd catch fire simultaneously the very next day.
We're told that the secret of the small loss is due to the watchful fire siren, perched atop a pole, just across from the telephone office, and to Fire Chief Bushman.
Immediately a call comes in, the operator pushes a button and a wailing shriek wakes up the whole town. Then she calls the chief. Then the chief and operator start calling up members of the department—19 of 'em—just in case they haven't heard the siren.
The firemen roar in from all directions and before you can say "Jack Robinson" a few times, they're on their way. And with a few more "Jack Robinsons" the fire's out.
All $6.15 worth!

SAW nearly every teacher in Orange county going to school yesterday.
And they didn't seem to enjoy it any more than their pupils enjoy sitting in class every day.
We watched, and could see lots of 'em sneak out when nobody was looking!

CALLED on Mrs. Ella Reynolds at Costa Mesa yesterday.
It wasn't a social call—had heard that she was owner of a piece of cloth, so we went to see her and the piece of cloth.
Mrs. Reynolds smiled at all the fuss over her family heirloom, because that's what it was.
The cloth was calico. It was homespun and home woven. In 1767!
The cloth was a part of a shirtwaist owned by her great-aunt in Massachusetts. She thinks that members of the family made it at home. Its colors are still as bright as the day that it was made. On the back it was written "150 years old—1917." That makes it 168 years old now!

MRS. REYNOLDS also has an almanac printed in 1776. The booklet was published by Benjamin West. It has facts concerning dates and weather just like the ones we get at drugstores today. In the back, however, are things that we don't find nowadays.
For example, there's a cure for cancer. It's very complicated, but we remembered reading that one takes the inner bark from the south side of a persimmon tree as one of the ingredients—why the south side, we don't know.
Other remedies included a sure cure for snakebite. It had a large number of herbs, which, when mixed, were to be forced down the patient's throat, if necessary. Another cure for the bite of a rattlesnake was application of tobacco leaves and rum to the wounded portion.
Mrs. Reynolds said that the valuable book was discovered when a fireplace was torn down in the old family home in Massachusetts.

THE Costa Mesa C. of C. is making more parking room for shoppers in their town, according to President Harold Grauel.

Visitors have to park parallel to the curb now, according to a new state law, and that allows about one-third as many cars in each block. So club members got busy and started inquiring about how to level off the former right-of-way of the P. E. through the business district.
Frank Vaughan kindly offered to donate his tractor and equipment for the work, and the C. of C. is furnishing two men to clean up debris after the tractor's work is finished. They have plenty of parking space, and when some kind soul donates 'em some trees to plant around the edges, it'll make a real beauty spot, according to those interested.

COUNTY'S TEACHERS HEAR SCIENTIST TELL OF PROGRESS

DR. MILLIKAN SPEAKS AT SESSION

Orange Institute Closes
With Talk; Attendance
Is Set At 1200

ORANGE.—The most important contribution of science to social progress has been introduction of the scientific method of approach to the problems of life, Dr. Robert Millikan, director, California Institute of Technology, told 1200 Orange county teachers at the closing session of the annual institute here last night.

Dr. Millikan compared modern scientific methods with the former superstitious, hysterical motives, which worked on the assumption that nature was as capricious as man. The change to modern methods became apparent only about 300 years ago, when man began to understand, in part, "Why things happen."
"Science has had a great effect on the life of the common man," he said. "Compare our living conditions with those of any other period and we find that they are infinitely better."
"Our destiny lies in our own hands, especially in the hands of secondary school teachers," he continued, remarking that the days of "hunger and magic" are gone. The essence of scientific thinking is applicable to all avenues of knowledge, he said, remarking how little these principles are applied to consideration of political acts.

Visitors Introduced
C. O. Harvey, Brea-Olinda Union High school principal, was chairman introducing F. L. Thurston, executive secretary of the California Teachers' association; Albert Launer, Fullerton, vice president of the State School Trustees' association; and Joseph Wright, Downey, president of the Science-Mathematics association of Southern California. The Fullerton District Junior college Humana Symphony choir, directed by Benjamin Edwards, furnished the musical program.

Doctor Harold Curtis Hand, school of education of Stanford university, made the first speech in the panel discussion at the afternoon session of the institute. His subject was "Social Changes Which Have Outmoded Yesterday's School." He made four major basic assumptions. First, the American public school was designed for the purpose of promoting American democracy; second, we assume that democracy at present is undergoing a severe crisis; third, we assume a democracy can be devised to suit our changing lives, and fourth, unless we do so devise an appropriate educational program, our democracy is threatened.

Educator Speaks
Dr. Paul Hanna, also of Stanford university, assumed the first answer in the discussion. Our pattern of education was established 100 years ago, and the need today, he said, is for a modern curriculum. The only purpose of education comes from the civilization surrounding that education, he said. In a period of critical transition, it is to study bases on courses of study with a historical approach, he added. Will French, superintendent of Long Beach schools, answered that faults in education lie in the colleges which educate teachers.

Miss Helen Heffernan, state department of education, suggested a seminar to study bases on which a new curriculum could be built. Dr. C. C. Trellingham, assistant superintendent of Los Angeles county schools, defended both teachers and the college professors, saying the need is for well balanced teachers who have taken work in all academic lines.
Frank Henderson, superintendent of Santa Ana schools, closed the discussion by remarking that we pride ourselves on democracy, yet submit to all sorts of regimentation. Education is all that will improve the situation, he added.

PATTERN 5447
Even though you don't like spiders, you've probably often admired the beauty of their cobwebs. Here are some crocheted doilies that are just as lovely in their cobwebby loveliness as these. They're made of string—you can use a finer cotton if you want smaller doilies—and they're a bit of handwork you'll be proud of. And, if you're smart, you'll make some for that bazaar that's coming soon. They are done so fast and, of course, cost next to nothing to make. And will you be pleased to see the way they'll sell! Imagine your guests at a luncheon table set with these doilies. Won't anything you serve be enhanced by the beauty of this setting. You can also use them as a buffet set, as doilies, on the serving tray or occasional table.
In pattern 5447 you will find complete information for making the doilies shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches needed; material requirements.
To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Santa Ana Journal Household Arts Department, 117 East Fifth street, Santa Ana, Cal.

READY FOR A BIG RAIN! SEA SCOUTS PLAN MEET AT BEACH

H. B. Man Predicts Storm
Coast L-i-n-e-s
By McDONALD WHITE

If Roch Bradshaw is going to make this Laguna's Front Page Animal Week—what with finding real Laguna ticks on Ted Cook's dog, ducks "chiseled" from Steve Chalmers by President Roosevelt, and butterfies pinned all over Don Meadows' walls—maybe there's a chance of landing on the rural page with a tick and that about a couple of dogs and some bees.

We'll take the dogs first because they bark louder than bees buzz. Laguna has two dogs—a big one and a little one—that are famous. Not famous for what they do, but for what they don't do. One's a moocher and the other's a sleeper.

First there's that great big cow-like lummock called "Jeff." Anywhere you look, day or night, you see Jeff. He lumbers around town poking his nose into all the shops and slowing up traffic when he crosses the street. In fact, he's a more permanent feature than the pedestrian sign in front of Mallow's drug store. But that's getting into "Chico's" territory. Jeff belongs to one of our most stable residents, Carl Benson, who has been plugging into the deeper recesses of our habitats for some 20 years or thereabouts.

Getting downright technical, Jeff is a certain per cent St. Bernard and still another per cent Irish wolfhound. Some will tell you the mama belonged to the canine nobility, has papers, ribbons, and belongs to a beautiful actress, but old Jeff—he's just plain dog. You see, his papa never got written up in the papers, and didn't care whether his family tree died or not.

Talking about dogs is a very touchy subject. Just ask Doc Mallow. He says, "Of course everybody thinks their dog is the best dog. Like children, you know." Doc was shaving at the time and he couldn't wag his jaw too fast or he might have caused some damage. Now you take Ted Cook's dog, "he rammed on between scratches." "I don't know anything about his ticks, or cigs, but I do know that Ted Cook has been trying for years to find a dog with as much personality as my Chico's got. (If that was supposed to be confidential, it's too late now.) The outstanding characteristic of Chico is that almost any time of the day or night he can be found lying in the doorway of the drug store. To a casual observer he appears to be asleep, but one wary eye is always on the alert for doggy trespassers. Size doesn't enter into the picture in Chico's case. A little black cocker spaniel can be a lord and master of his realm—in fact more so—than many a big dog.

There's Thomas L. Hosmer's dog, Mike, for instance. Mike wouldn't think of trotting past Chico's corner without first crossing to the other side of the street. That would be disrespectful. Nor would Chico pass Mike's territory at close range. Whatever other faults Laguna may have, dogdom is well organized.

COLBERT COMEDY HERE SUNDAY

STAR'S BEST MOVIE IS BOOKED

'She Married Her Boss' Screens Tomorrow at Broadway Theater

Affording every opportunity to display the charm that has endeared her to the public, Claudette Colbert's newest and best film, "She Married Her Boss," will open at the Broadway theater tomorrow, Manager Lester J. Fountain announced today.

A special attraction on the program which opens tomorrow is "The Perfect Tribute," in which the famous character actor, Charles (Chic) Sale, gives a realistic and dramatic picturization of Abraham Lincoln. It is a role which Sale has always wanted to take.

A notable cast, including both veterans of the stage and screen, support Sale in this story, which tells a true-life incident in the career of the Great Emancipator. They include William V. Mong, Walter Brennan, Oscar Apfel, George Irving and William Henry.

"She Married Her Boss" is easily Miss Colbert's best picture since "It Happened One Night," according to critics. In this new comedy-drama, Miss Colbert, a private and ultra-efficient secretary, is foolish enough to fall in love with and marry her boss, who married her mainly to bring order out of the confusion of his home.

The supporting cast includes such players as Melvyn Douglas, Michael Bartlett, Raymond Washburn, Jean Dixon, Katherine Alexander, Edith Fellows and Clara Kinball Young.

Short subjects include a Mickey Mouse cartoon, "On Ice," and World News events.

NAVAL CADETS MOVIE COMING

A picture of Uncle Sam's midships, "Annapolis Farewell," and a dramatic story of those who live by the sea, "Waterfront Lady," make up the double bill opening Wednesday at the West Coast theater.

"Annapolis Farewell" is said to be one of the most authentic pictures to have come out of the naval academy in recent years. Tom Brown and Sir Guy Standing are said to turn in splendid performances.

"Waterfront Lady" is an idyll of the waterfront, recalling the romantic ballads and sea chanteys of the passing windjammer era, and all the thrills of a life on the sea.

Included in the cast are such screen favorites as Jack LaRue, Mary Gordon, Grant Withers, Charles C. Wilson, J. Farrell Macdonald, Frank Albertson, Ann Rutherford and Barbara Pepper.

GARBO COMING IN 'ANNA KARENINA'

Greta Garbo begins her tenth year as a motion picture star with the most ambitious film production of her colorful career, "Anna Karenina," which will open at the West Coast theater next Saturday, Oct. 19.

Frederic March is co-starred with Miss Garbo in this masterpiece of entertainment, which also serves as a visual historical record of imperialistic Russia at the zenith of its splendor. The cast includes such popular players as Freddie Bartholomew, who starred in "David Copperfield," Maureen O'Sullivan, May Robson and Basil Rathbone.

'ALICE ADAMS' TO SHOW HERE OCT. 26

Deception and pretense weave a tangled web in "Alice Adams," which stars Katharine Hepburn in the title role and which is scheduled to open at the West Coast theater on Oct. 26, according to Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Based on the Booth Tarkington novel which won the Pulitzer prize for 1922, the story is an unvarnished picture of the struggles and heartaches which a girl endures for love and social recognition in a small midwestern town. Fred Stone, Fred MacMurray and Evelyn Venable have leading roles.

'She Married Her Boss'

Some of Cast In 'Big Broadcast'

BING CROSBY AND 'WINGS OVER ETHIOPIA' COMING

Bing Crosby in one of his gayest comedies, "Two For Tonight," and a picture of extremely timely appeal, "Wings Over Ethiopia," comprise the double bill opening at the Broadway theater next Thursday night.

The Crosby picture presents the crooning Bing in a refreshing bit of romantic tomfoolery, assisted by Joan Bennett, Mary Boland, Thelma Todd and Lynne Overman. Provided with a set of top notch hit tunes, a gay piece of business for a plot, and an admirable supporting cast, "Two For Tonight" rises high, wide and handsome above ordinary screen entertainment. Crosby is said to be at his sparkling best as a singer and light comedian, in a vehicle that gives full rein to his talents.

"Wings Over Ethiopia" will give the audience a thorough insight into the country which now is making headlines. The picture starts with a plane leaving Zurich, flying over Italy, Alexandria, Port Said, following the Suez to Addis Ababa, strangely modernized city peopled by a primitive race. By plane, train, donkey and foot, the travelers journey through the plains of Ethiopia to the interior, encounter many strange tribes and communities. There are gaps in this picture to affect any audience.

'BIG BROADCAST OF 1936' IS SHOWING AT WEST COAST

The big musical comedy, "The Big Broadcast of 1936," tuneful and gay picture combining a diverting comedy with an impressive array of stars from the top ranks of radio, stage and screen, opens an engagement of four days today at the West Coast theater.

Featuring such noted comedians as Jack Oakie, Burns and Allen and Lyda Roberti providing laugh-provoking antics in the new feature, entertainment of hilarious and merry nature is predominant in the film.

In addition to the comedians, there is an imposing array of famous personalities such as Bing Crosby, Amos 'n' Andy, Ethel Merman, Bill Robinson, Ray Noble and his orchestra, West and McGinty, Mary Boland and Charles Ruggles contribute outstanding specialty numbers.

The plot centers around the unusual adventures of two radio entertainers when they fall into the hands of a romantic young countess, who kidnaps them until she can make up her mind which of them she wants to marry.

Amos 'n' Andy are seen in a typical skit; Bing Crosby sings his "I Wish on the Moon"; Ethel Merman sings "It's the Animal in Me" with an elaborately staged chorus ensemble background; Bill Robinson presents his sensational dance routine; the Nichols Brothers are seen in "The Miss Brown to You" musical presentation while Ray Noble and his band present other of comedy's song hits. Miss Roberti does the "Double Trouble" number.

Specialty selected short subjects include a novelty travel film, "Going Places No. 13," a Grantland Rice Sportlight, "Hooked Lightning," a cartoon, "Happy Family" and world news events.

'DOWN EAST' IS BOOKED HERE

A drama, which more than 40 years ago first portrayed the triumph of young love over merciless self-righteousness and bigotry, will again hold the attention of Santa Ana audiences when "Way Down East," picturization of America's greatest drama, opens at the Broadway theater Sunday, Oct. 20, Manager Lester J. Fountain announced today.

Featuring Henry Fonda, star of "The Farmer Takes a Wife," with Rochelle Hudson, "Way Down East," tells the story of a woman who has sinned, who atones for her sin and who asserts her right to love and happiness.

The second feature on the program will be "Little America," with highlights and twilights of the second Byrd Antarctic expedition, given absorbing dramatic continuity. It is a feature length record of the world's greatest adventure, a day-by-day account of what Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his company went through in the ice-bound wilderness.

DOUBLE BILL TO END TONIGHT

Theatergoers of Santa Ana and vicinity will have one last chance tonight to see an entertaining double feature program with "Here Comes Cookie," Burns and Allen musical, farce, and "The Public Enemy," newspaper story with George Murphy and Jean Arthur.

In "Here Comes Cookie" the nutty Gracie is entrusted with her millionaire father's fortune to keep the family funds out of the hands of a fortune hunter. How Gracie proceeds to try to spend all the money brings about many uproarious laughs.

How Counties In State Got Their Names

The story of how California counties derived their names is an interesting part of the history of the Golden State. Believing that thousands of tourists who annually motor over the state's great highway system would like to know the history of the names of the counties, the County Engineers Association has prepared a booklet titled "How Counties Got Their Names." The booklet is a series of brief stories of the origin and meaning of the names of the counties of California, including a few salient facts about each county.

KINGS COUNTY
Created March 22, 1893. This county was created out of the western part of Tulare county, and took its name from Kings river, which, according to history and tradition, was discovered in 1805 by an exploring expedition and named Rio de los Santos Reyes (the "river of the holy kings"), from which it obtained its present name.

In the lower center of the great San Joaquin valley lies one of the smallest, one of the youngest, but one of the richest and most resourceful counties of the state. Kings county is known as "The Kingdom of Kings" because of the wealth and diversification of the products of this area. In 1852 there were only 100 settlers in the region now known as Kings and Tulare counties, and this area was a part of Mariposa county. In 1852 Tulare was formed, but was not until 1893 that Kings came into existence by divorcing itself from Tulare. In 1908 about 100 square miles were taken from Fresno county and added to Kings. Tulare lake, at one time covering thousands of acres, a paradise for game and waterfowl, gradually has been drying up and as early as 1881 settlers began to take up land in the lake bed. After years of tremendous reclamation work, practically the entire lake bed now is under cultivation, producing abundant crops of wheat, barley, corn, alfalfa and cotton. Peaches are the most important of a large variety of fruit crops. Poultry raising is a rapidly growing industry and Kings ranks second in butter manufacturing in California. Kings has one of the greatest oil fields in the world, Kettleman Hills being mostly within its territory. The assessed valuation of Kings has nearly doubled since 1928. Population: 25,385. Area: 1,159 square miles.

Radio Roundup

TONIGHT'S PROGRAMS

By HOMER CANFIELD

THE LATEST IN WAR NEWS direct from the front! That's the choice morsel radio promises for your daily Sunday. Edward W. Beattie, United Press correspondent DISPATCH now in Addis Ababa, will flash a brief summary of the war's progress as seen from Ethiopian headquarters during the "Magic Key of RCA." The program is a full-hour and starts on KFI-NBC at 11 a. m.

Beattie was the first American newspaperman to reach the Ethiopian capital after conflict became imminent. In addition to the war-zone venture, the program plans to swing towards Germany for a song recital by Dusolina Giani-nini with the Berlin Radio orchestra.

From its point of origin, New York, the show presents Albert Spalding, Rudy Vallee and Frank Black's NBC Symphony orchestra. Hollywood is the next stop. Here James Gleason and Helen Boderick (remember her in "Top Hat") will contribute a comedy routine.

"Magic Key of RCA"—one program that's aptly named. Collegiate football starts advertising in a big way tonight with a full-hour "Football Jamboree" starting on KJH-CBS at 5 o'clock. Five prominent coaches

FOOTBALL.—Benny Friedman, New York; Lynn Walcott, Northwestern; Doc Spears, Wisconsin; Elmer Layden, Notre Dame, and Jim Crowley, Fordham, and bands and glee clubs from various schools will supply the musical end of the show.

The game's new rules will be worked over by William H. Friessell Jr., official referee. Wallace Beery has finally decided to take in some of that easy money radio has been waving under his nose for the past year. He'll usher the "Shell EMCEE Chateau" through its weekly hour, KFI at 8:30 o'clock. The program pattern remains very much the same as Johnson's. Victor Young stays on as musical director.

The isolated birthplace of Lief Erikson in the ancient island kingdom of Iceland will be the scene of another transatlantic broadcast Sunday. The program will come over KJH-CBS at 9:45 a. m. from the lonely hamlet of Eirikstadir, where the ruins of Erikson's home were recently uncovered.

HOEPEL FACES TRIAL FOR SELLING WEST POINT APPOINTMENT

CONGRESSMAN AND SON TO BE TRIED

Case Will Open Nov. 11; California Democrat Says He's Innocent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12. (AP)—The United States district attorney's office reported today it would be prepared to proceed on Nov. 11 with the trial of Representative John H. Hoeppel, California Democrat, and his son, Charles, on charges of selling a West Point appointment.

Kenneth Parkinson, one of three attorneys for the Hoeppels, said the defense likewise would be ready for the trial.

"They are completely innocent, and we will be prepared to prove it," Mr. Parkinson said.

Conspiracy Charged
The Hoeppels, father and son, were charged in two indictments returned March 18 by a special grand jury with conspiring to sell an appointment to the military academy to John W. Ives, Baltimore, for $1000. The government alleged they accepted a $1000 note from Ives.

Samuel F. Beach, assistant U. S. attorney for the District of Columbia, said 10 witnesses, including Ives and former Representative John H. Burke, Long Beach, Calif., would testify for the government during the trial. Mr. Burke made the actual appointment of Ives, trading a West Point vacancy with Hoeppel for permission to appoint a candidate to the United States naval academy.

Officials on Stand
Other government witnesses probably will include Mrs. Neil Raymond, Congressman Hoeppel's former secretary; Isaac Blade, San Diego; representatives of the adjutant general's office, and department of justice agents, Mr. Beach said.

At the time of the indictments, the government alleged the "deal" with Ives was negotiated in Baltimore by the Younger Hoeppel, masquerading under the name of Charles Alexander. On May 5, 1934, five days after receiving the appointment, Ives resigned without having gone to the academy or taken the entrance examination.

Representative Hoeppel, whose home is at Arcadia, branded the government's allegations as "fakes" and asserted he was "not a bit alarmed." He told newspapermen he made the appointment of Ives through Burke at the request of his old army commander and had never seen Ives until the boy came to his office May 5 with his resignation in hand.

INDIANS FIND BOY, 3, LOST IN WILDS

RIVERSIDE, Oct. 12. (AP)—A 3-year-old white boy, who wandered away into dangerous mountains, today owed his life to Indian mastery of the wilds, demonstrated in a manner more thrilling than fiction.

Since little Proctor Baker disappeared in the San Jacinto mountains last Wednesday, army pilots from March field, mounted rangers, and hundreds of CCC workers had combed the area in futile search.

With hope waning, a call was sent yesterday for trackers from the Santa Rosa reservation. At the head of a CCC party, a group of Chulla Indians set out through thick underbrush along a trail invisible to white men's eyes.

They followed a circuitous route of 10 miles, picking up old and faded clues across rugged country where hunters have bagged mountain lions. At length, with nightfall approaching, they stopped before a thick brush. Under it was the tired and frightened child.

Although cold and hunger had exhausted Proctor's strength, he will suffer no ill effects from his experience, reported Dr. Patrick Flynn, CCC camp physician. "Without the Indians," the physician added, "I doubt if we could have found him before he starved or was attacked by animals."

The youngster fell asleep before his overjoyed parents could tuck him into bed.

SANTA ANANS HOME FROM LEAGUE CONCLAVE IN NORTH

Filled with inspiration from the state league convention which they attended Wednesday and Thursday at Hotel Del Monte, Mesdames Carrie Watson, F. H. Heine, A. J. Knight and J. D. Campbell of the Santa Ana League of Women Voters were home today after the trip North. The first three women went as delegates, and Mrs. Campbell as a state director.

Highlights of the conclave were two resolutions. One, sent to Governor Frank F. Merriam, expressed the league's gratification over the passage of the signing of the state unemployment compensation law and urged early appointment of a reserve commission to function after Jan. 1, 1936.

The other resolution endorsed the constitutional principle of the right of free speech and constructive discussion on all economic, political and social issues and governmental policies in general.

Present Thursday were: Mae Thomas, Rowena Grout, Eva Bell, Elizabeth Adams, Margaret Robertson, Louane Leech, Esther Gardner, Bertha Belt, Nellie Parker, Edith Moore, Maude Sutton, Minnie Cowan, Addie Gardner, Lena Hewitt, and Luella Hill, guest of the year.

BOYS, FATHERS TALK ON HOBBIES

That boys and their fathers can and do have hobbies that are both entertaining and useful, and that can be enjoyed by both at the same time, was demonstrated at Thursday night's father-and-son evening at the Y. M. C. A. when the entire program was given over to discussion of such activities.

Paul Vissman, Jr., exhibited his collection of polished sea shells, and his father discussed pewter work as done at home. E. H. Layton and his son, Glenn, demonstrated their musical hobby in numbers on the guitar, and Mr. Layton spoke on the values of such work. Lane Wright carried his father had constructed. D. H. Tibbals spoke on stamp collecting and displayed interesting specimens. Herbert Thomas talked on handcraft and announced a group on Friday afternoons at the Y. M. C. A. for boys who wish to learn such work.

Judges Who Figured In Hauptmann's Fate

Here are three men who have played a prominent part in the fate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, whose effort to escape the death penalty for the kidnap-murder of Charles Lindbergh, Jr., was thwarted by a verdict of the New Jersey State Court of Errors and Appeals. Chancellor Luther Campbell (left) presides over the State court. Justice Thomas W. Trenchard (center) was on the bench during the famous trial at Flemington, N. J., where a jury found the Bronx carpenter guilty. Justice Charles W. Parker (right) wrote the state court's opinion which dealt Hauptmann a blow in his battle for freedom. (Associated Press Photos)

In 1535 appeared the first complete English Bible into the English-speaking world.

Miss Frances Tibbetts Wedded to J. R. Lester Boyle in Lovely Church Rites

175 Friends Present At Reception

Arbor Decked with Roses Couple to Return from Trip to Live at Beach

In the presence of some 200 relatives and friends last evening at 8 o'clock before an altar outlined by a bower of dahlias and roses in the United Presbyterian church, Miss Frances Tibbetts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Tibbetts, 2135 North Main street, exchanged wedding vows with J. R. Lester Boyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Boyle, 1425 South Garvey street. The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Kelly officiated.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white satin with pearl clips at the cowl neckline, and a strand of pearls given her by her grandmother, Mrs. Mary Platt, 1013 Spurgeon street. The pearls were a gift to Mrs. Platt from her husband, Miss Tibbetts also wore a tulle veil gathered into a caplet stitched with tiny pearls and made flowers. She carried a sheaf of gardenias, lilies of the valley and a center orchid which later served as a corsage on her all-blue traveling costume.

Bridesmaids Wear Pastel "Something old" her pearls, "something new" her gown, "something borrowed" a lace handkerchief from her mother, and the blue was a small flower tucked into her bouquet.

Miss Jane McBurney in pink silk lace frock and carrying pink dahlias was maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Misses Louise Rowland in blue, Wills Bradford in pink, Ruth McBurney in green and Jean Upshall in peach moire. They carried pastel bouquets.

D. Merle Boyle was best man. Ushers were Willis Sherrill, Arlow Lapham, James Norton and Rodrick Smiley.

To Live at Beach T. H. Warner played the organ, and Miss Verna Helm was soloist before the wedding. The bridal party stood on a series of steps in candle-light. Leading the way to the altar was little Lorna Frances Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Williams of Riverside drive. The diminutive girl wore blue taffeta with little pink flower trimming and carried a basketful of sweet peas.

A reception at the church was given for 175 guests. Cakes and ices were served. The bridal couple then left on a trip to an unannounced destination. After next week they will be at home to their friends at Laguna Beach.

The bride is a graduate of Santa Ana High school and attended Junior college for a year. Her husband is a graduate of the Santa Ana schools and California Institute of Technology. He is in the city engineering department at Laguna Beach.

The Thinkers

Wherein women of the community express their views on topics of particular interest to women.

Do you think people in general should devote more attention to making their homes attractive?

Mrs. M. J. Newberry: I think every person should do more along the lines of improving his home. If more thought and effort were devoted to the home, people would probably entertain more in their homes and have a happier home life.

Mrs. H. L. Bascom: I think it would be a wonderful thing if we all would remain at home a little more. We tend to forget our homes in going places and being busy outside of them. We really should stop and "take a deep breath" once in a while, to keep our homes the center of interest.

Mrs. L. E. Ross: I do think that in general we might profitably spend more time and attention on our homes. However, while it looks as though too many women are busy working when their husbands are also earning, one can never tell the circumstances, or judge fairly without looking into each individual case.

'If In Doubt'

E. D.: Wedding anniversaries may be celebrated by a dance, dinner or an afternoon tea and is for intimate friends and the family.

SHE'LL BE BRIDE

Miss Elizabeth "Betty" Smith's happy expression as seen above is easily to be understood, for she is preparing to be married on Oct. 26 to Norman Paul, Santa Ana athlete and instructor in the local night school. She is a Santa Ana schools graduate and a member of Sigma Theta sorority, and has hosts of Orange county friends.

TEAPOT TATTLE

By ELLEN SNEBLEY

"Hello, cottie!" No, it isn't a printer's mistake—just an often heard remark, lately, since the ancient 'n honorable game of cottie is back in vogue in our community.

One, and we hear still another, of this season's sorority ruff parties will have provided opportunity for local socialites to draw the cute little legs on those funny bugs not otherwise mentioned in "the better circles."

Personally, we wonder what's become of tidley-winks, which was another chummy pastime of yesteryear.

With sorrow one learns that Etta (Loretta) Spangler is preparing to pack her things and decamp to Laguna, where for the winter months she'll be with her aunt, Miss Elizabeth Gillespie, owner of The Trap-Door, popular tearoom. It's a thorough-going gyp, her leaving Santa Ana; but it doesn't mean her warm smile won't be seen at Tux'n Gown parties and Junior Ebbl parties 'n all, so it's really not like losing her entirely.

By their stripes shall you know 'em, the gloriously-garbed males of today!

Chalk stripes (see your neighborhood cottie) are all the thing, and it's hard to say whether fitted or action backs are better for winter suits.

But sloppily chic as may be your topogers and reefer 'n camel's hair vagabond coats, there's nothing like soft, deliciously rich looking fur for feminine winter wear. And do our younger misses think so?

Martha Wallingford is sporting a lovely new squirrel swaggar, as are petite Betty Smith, Virginia Berry and Betty Rowland. Lois Simmons is all set for football weather with a brown kid caracul, while Marge Berkner is dashing about in Japanese weasel, and each one has a snappy fall hat to complete the effect.

What happens when alma matters mingle? For a group of Orange county Stanford women the question was an embarrassing one, when early this week at the studio of Dr. George Brandriff, Laguna Beach artist and erstwhile dentist, they had to decide whether to sing their Stanford songs in the presence of an S. C. man, a U. C. man and an Oxy man!

With the exception of one valiant damsel, Lillian Rivers of Fullerton, who both sang and played, the Stanfordites were mute—for their gallantry stopped short of singing their competitors' songs.

The evening in the Laguna studio proved most entertaining, especially for one feminine guest who underwent a complete inquisition as to the subject of her Ph.D. thesis, and countless others whose pet ideas on art, modern and otherwise, were challenged by the three men present, two journalists and one artist.

Their host, who turned to art after winning success in his dental profession, and subsequently has won a name for himself as a painter, professed many ideas as to the importance of open-mindedness in the modern picture-seer—in spite of which, we're still baffled in our search for the title character in Picasso's "Nude Descending a Staircase!"

Observed Helen Demetriou the other evening talking to a particularly handsome specimen of manhood with very broad shoulders and a grand build, terminating in feet 'n ankles incased in loud-shouting red, white and blue socks. Name unknown.

"Goodie, I've got a bank account!" And it wasn't little Johnnie speaking. It was none other than Alyce Majors, who's gone practical and opened an account for herself in a local bank. Wonder what it's on account of?

At a late hour, the hostess served cakes, ices, nuts and tea to her guests.

FAHOLO CLASS SET FOR PARTY MONDAY

Faholo class members of the First Baptist church were reminding each other today that their class jamboree was to be held Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the J. A. Tarpley cabin at Newport beach.

New seen-togethers: Rosalind Schilling and Lee Hasenjaeger.

Mystery for today: What w.k. local couple whose names have been linked since their school days just added an electric refrigerator to their "community-owned" hope chest?

Dr. Elliott H. Rowland, Dave Hill and Betty Rowland, whose birthday anniversaries are this week-end are following a long established custom by celebrating together in some fashion or other today.

Without Winchelling, we can't help but remark on the goodly number of young matrons who're staying at home lots, these days, excepting for the customary mile-a-day walks.

Harriet Chapin is wearing a swanky new link sterling bracelet engraved on top with her name, while inside is written: Gene.

Seen here'n there: Ruth Owens, swinging along, tall, dark and very attractive. . . . Billie (Mrs. Carl) Lykke, smiling broadly and looking up with eyes fringed by long, curly lashes. . . . Mrs. Milo K. Tedstrom chatting over the phone in her low, leisurely, appealing drawl. . . . Sundry Sigma Thetas getting waved and maneuvered for the party tomorrow. . . . Frances Tibbetts arranging a pearl-stitched tulle cap on her forehead, ready to walk to the altar last night.

And a busy Friday pleasantly climaxed by a visit from Barbara Rowland, who's getting prettier every day! She wore an informal suit and a red and yellow lei from Honolulu, and was full of pep, stories about the fun she's having at Scripps, plans for the fresh-man-senior formal to be next Saturday night at the Norcorian club and sat on the edge of a chair long enough to mention bringing home a guest, Kathryn Boswell of Corcoran, and Scripps, and that Nancy White's also home for the week-end—and that she gets a big thrill out of receiving The Journal every day at college, and enjoys it a lot!

And so, for today, goodbye.

Mary Stoddard

When Love Dies for a Couple, What of the Material Reminders of Association?

By MARY STODDARD

Emily Post gives explicit directions as to what to write on pictures that you present to a young man as gifts so that there will be no embarrassing results, but today's mail brings another problem. Should the girl insist that a young man keep her presents, since she hasn't any use for them anyhow and would like him to have the tokens?

Dear Miss Stoddard: For several years I have been going "steady" with a boy whom I thought I loved. Just recently, however, I decided it was better that we stop going together.

We had been exchanging gifts and last year when he graduated from high school I bought him a very expensive one. It took me some time to acquire the money to get it. Now that we have stopped seeing each other he has given back everything I gave him, including my pictures and this graduation present.

I have no use for it and would really like to have him keep it. Should I send it back to him, or should I send him the gifts and pictures he had given me?—LOIS.

I am handicapped in answering by the fact that I do not know on what terms you and this young man meet each other now. If you still regard yourselves as friends even though you no longer "go together," I see no reason why you should not tell him that you would prefer that he keep the gift since you have no use for it.

If, however, your parting was a bitter one and you do not care to see him again, you had better simply send back the things he has given you and say nothing more about it.

JURY AWARDS OWNERS FOR ROAD ROUTE

Damages of $23,670 Are Given 57 Defendants In State Suit

Damages approximating $23,670 were awarded William H. Rohns and 57 other defendants last night by a jury in department 3, superior court, that heard evidence in the state condemnation suit seeking rights-of-way from Fairhaven to Santa Clara avenue for the extension of Grand avenue to Orange.

The state, through its suit in eminent domain, sought condemnation of a strip through some of the richest groves in this section of the county. Presentation of evidence started before Judge A. Caminetti, Jr., and the jury last Monday.

Settlement offered by the state was opposed by owners of the groves through which the highway will pass and established a tentative payment offered would not indemnify the property owners for the damage to their remaining land. There were 18 individual parcels of property involved.

to the edge of the town to nibble in the gardens, and leopards occasionally make raids, taking dogs from the verandas of their owners. The town itself started when a party of railroad builders ran off to establish a station in the city. A railroad from Mombasa, in Kenya, to Uganda and established in 1895 and had progressed until in 1898 construction had reached the point that is now Nairobi. There food supplies gave out and the workers set up a colony. Finding the location excellent for agricultural purposes, these pioneers started raising coffee, tea and cattle.

Charming Life
The settlers have created for themselves a life that is charming and not dependent upon the cities. With neighbors living as far as 10 miles apart, hospitality is the keynote of life, and because gasoline sells at three shillings (almost 75 cents) per gallon, the settlers use a gharry, ox-drawn cart, or horses for making visits.

Mrs. Wyatt told of one experience when she and her hostess were traveling to a neighboring farm for tea. Twice during the trip their vehicle was stopped to permit herds of giraffes to cross the road.

The visitor outlined a typical day for a British settler, illustrating the gracious living of the people. At 6 o'clock in the morning the farmer is awakened by a native boy who brings him his tea. At 6:30 work starts on the farm and at 7:30 breakfast is served. After breakfast until 11 a. m. the settler expects work being done on the farm and then stops for mid-morning tea. Lunch is served at 12:30 p. m.

Rest in Afternoon
In the afternoon women of the household rest or play bridge while the farmer works on his books and makes another tour of inspection. Promptly at 4 o'clock work ceases and tea is served. After that the bath and "sundowner," or drink, and tennis is at 6 o'clock, and after dinner the family plays cards or reads.

There is no electricity for the farms and lighting is obtained from gasoline lamps and lanterns. Speaking of the natives, Mrs. Wyatt said that while there are many tribes, all with their own particular language, Swahili is the universal language used by natives of Kenya, Uganda and Tanganyika for inter-tribal communication and in dealings with the Europeans. She told of attending church services near Nairobi where the minister gave the sermon in Swahili and it was then translated into the various dialects represented in the congregation.

Although only a generation removed from slavery, the natives have their tribal ethics and rigidly adhere to them. In the cities they are meticulous in observance of the European code.

Natives Have Religion
Religion of the inland natives is Bantu, with the coastal tribes generally adhering to the Mohammedan faith. Rites of the various tribes are carried on through secret societies of which there are hundreds. These ceremonies and tribal dances are closed to Europeans and tales of the colorful native dances seen at Mombasa, while participated in by natives, are arranged solely for the benefit of tourist parties and do not reflect the customs of the tribes, she said.

Those natives who have affiliated themselves with the missions have shown a wonderful ability for detailed work, many of them work in the laboratory of the mission hospital, and many of them have been taught minor surgery and application of dressings.

Ugandans Advanced
Natives of the Uganda are more advanced than those of other territories, Mrs. Wyatt said, and a medical college has been established for them. Several classes already have been graduated.

Mrs. Wyatt told of a study that is being conducted in Nairobi by Dr. Gordon, a British psychologist. He is attempting to discover whether the natives are developing from mental infancy or whether the mind of the native of today is degenerating from a in doing the crating job right. The eighth grandchild. Pretty soon we got around to the miracle. It was happening already, although we didn't realize it then. The greatest miracles in the world are the ones that go on inside the hearts and minds of men.

"So, I don't care for any publicity," Dr. Miller had said. "I've had too much lately." And he told me a little bit about the battle of Gleneyre street. Gleneyre street runs along the hills back of the Coast boulevard, down through Sleepy Hollow and Blue Bird canyon. There was quite a struggle before the people could decide just how Gleneyre street should be improved.

I asked a question or two and Dr. Miller wanted to his subject. Here was something that kindled a spark of contact between us.

Puts Hammer Down
Presently Dr. Miller laid down his hammer on the porch rail. He went in the house, and a moment later came out with a green covered pamphlet.

"Read that over," he suggested, "and you will get an idea of what we've been working for."

I sat down and read while he went on with his work. The booklet, written by Dr. Miller, showed the ideal which he had been striving to realize on Gleneyre street. After I had read awhile, Dr. Miller went into the house again. When he came out, he had two cigars.

"An old man's cigar," he chuckled as he handed me one. "They've had most of the nicotine distilled out of them. Lots of young men would be better off if they smoked them."

Has Good Cigars
We lighted up. They were good cigars. Dr. Miller sat down on a porch swing opposite me and we talked. Or rather he talked, because he had most to do with the miracle. The first part of the miracle, of course, had already happened. He wasn't driving nails in the crate any more. He was sitting there telling me, a stranger, about the thing that seemed, at that moment, to be closest to his life.

Dr. Miller is an engineer, a man who has dealt with the big things of the world. But now it is not the Panama canal or problems of complicated mechanics that absorbs him. His dream is to preserve on Gleneyre street a little bit of the rugged village charm that is really Laguna.

"Why, some folks wanted to turn Gleneyre into a regular city street," he expostulated. A level characterless street. A speedway where through traffic would thunder past, shattering the peaceful charm of the village. A street where children could not play.

No Longer Strangers
And so presently we were not strangers any more. We were side by side in Dr. Miller's car and he was showing me Gleneyre street. Across from his tree-sheltered home was a little patch of shrubbery.

"I just put that in as an example of what can be done to beautify the street," remarked Dr. Miller.

We didn't go down through Sleepy Hollow because the grade on this side hasn't been completed. We went around and came into Gleneyre street again on the other side. As we drove along, or rather he drove along, we stopped here and there to see some special feature of the village road. I began to understand Dr. Miller's dream.

Like Village Road
Sleepy Hollow and Blue Bird canyon could have been filled so that the road ran through the road on a level; but instead the dips down, then up, with the charm of irregularity, presenting a changing picture of scenery. There are curves, too, like there should be in a village road.

We don't need a secondary through traffic highway on Gleneyre street," remarked Dr. Miller. "Half the people in Laguna can use it to go to and from town. They don't want to drive fast. A 24-foot road will be higher level of the past. Having left Kenya more than a year ago, Mrs. Wyatt is firm in her determination to return some day. Every day, she says, is a new page of romance and gracious living that, once experienced, is never forgotten. It is only in places like Nairobi that civilization mingles with savagery each with a deep sympathy and understanding for the other.

CITY OBSERVES COLUMBUS DAY

With all banks, city and county offices closed, Santa Ana today observed Columbus day. Business houses and the postoffice, however, remained open. The holiday also was observed by employees of the state board of equalization, the office of that department, located at 306 West Fifth street, being closed.

Columbus day is the holiday set apart for commemoration of the discovery of America by Columbus in 1492.

Other than the closing of banks, city and county offices, there is no official observance of the holiday here. The Knights of Columbus will observe the day tomorrow when they take communion in a body at St. Joseph's Catholic church at 7 a. m.

Following the communion service, breakfast will be served in the Knights of Columbus hall. Men of the Holy Name society of this district have been invited to participate.

RESERVES WILL GO TO SCHOOL

School for training of reserve army officers in Santa Ana district will open Monday night in the courtroom of Justice of the Peace Kenneth Morrison, hall of records, according to an announcement today by Capt. W. L. Tubbs, in charge of the school.

Captain Tubbs said that the first meeting will start at 7:30 p. m. and close at 9:30 p. m. The school will continue until May. All meetings after the opening session will be held the second and fourth Monday of each month at 710 North Main street, and start at 7 o'clock.

Col. Dwight M. Green, commanding officer of the 364th Infantry will be one of the speakers at the opening session. He will be accompanied here by Maj. Randolph Gordon, unit instructor, and Maj. G. A. Benedict, president of the State department of the Reserve Officers' association.

TWO WPA JOBS START OCT. 21

Authorization to start work Oct. 21 on two Orange county projects under Works Progress administration has been received by Dan Mulhearn, WPA director for Orange county.

One project is construction of a first unit of the Valencia high school at Placentia. Total cost of this project will be $38,168, with the federal government furnishing $15,463 and the school district $22,705. According to Mr. Mulhearn, the project will provide work for 136 men, but a smaller number will be used at the start.

The second project to get under way Oct. 21 is the resurfacing of streets and alleys in La Habra. This job will cost a total of $6939.72, with the federal allocation amounting to $4464. The city will provide $2475.72. The project will give work to 16 men.

GOODWILL CHIEF WILL SPEAK HERE

On next Tuesday evening, those who are associated with the Orange county branch of the Goodwill Industries of Southern California will gather for a 6 o'clock dinner meeting at the Richmond Avenue Methodist church to hear Dr. E. J. Helms, Boston, Mass. Dr. Helms is the executive superintendent of the National Goodwill Industries.

Those associated with the organization in Orange county are urged to bring their friends with them. Dr. Helms will discuss the activities of the Goodwill organization throughout the United States, stressing the work done in helping the needy.

He's Going Back To Norway—It Seems To Be Best

D. C. Mustad, Los Angeles, will leave next week for Norway. He will be gone at least five years. Mr. Mustad is not going to Norway because he wants to, but because he has decided that it is the smart thing to do. Of course he can stay in the United States if he wants to, but the trouble is he would have to spend a great deal of time in the penitentiary if he decided to stay.

On July 29, Mustad pleaded guilty to charges of first degree robbery. Aug. 9, he was granted five years probation, provided he leave the country and stay out of the United States for five years.

Just a few days before he was ready to leave from Wilmington, the district attorney decided to file charges of possession of firearms by an alien. Consequently, Mustad has spent the past 30 days in the county jail. His ship leaves Wilmington next week, and officers will be there to wish him bon voyage.

Anyway, There Was A Dog And Couple Of Boys!

Ted Collins, 316 South Flower street, created a mild disturbance in the police station this morning when he telephoned and said, "Somebody is swiping my dog. I want an officer right away."

Assistant Chief of Police Harry Fink and Detective Lieutenant Charles Wolford were the only two men in the station with the exception of the desk sergeant. There has been considerable "dogsnapping" lately, and both officers thought that now was the time to catch the "dogsnapper."

When they arrived at Mr. Collins' home, they found that it wasn't his dog in the first place, and that his children had seen some Mexican boys chasing after a dog that looked just like the Collins dog. The other dog turned out to be the property of one of the Mexican boys.

The complaint alleged that Petty had been employed as a ranch hand at a monthly salary of $60.

According to the complaint, the amount demanded represents the balance due for wages over a period of 15 months ending May 1936.

VALENCIA'S GROWTH BETTER REPORT GOOD ADVANCE IN INDUSTRY

Growth of valencia oranges in September was somewhat above that of last year but below the average since 1924, and sizes are still smaller than they were last year at this time, it was reported today by Dr. D. D. Waynick of the Association Laboratories at Anaheim.

Dr. Waynick's figures and averages are based on measurements in 13 orchards.

It was found that outside fruit made a growth of 212 inches in September and had a mean diameter of 1.886 inches when measured. Inside fruit made a growth of 192 inches and had a mean diameter of 1.723 inches. The average size of outside fruit last year at this time was 2.084 inches while that of inside fruit was 1.723 inches. The growth in September, 1934, was 190 inches for outside fruit and 178 inches for inside fruit.

WEEK'S CITRUS REVIEW

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12 (AP)—Both oranges and lemons sold in the Eastern and Middle Western auction centers during the past week recorded an average price per box gain over the preceding week.

California valencias averaged 15 cents per box higher to reach an average for the week of $3.36 per box. Due to the Jewish holiday on Monday there were 85 fewer cars sold in the auctions than a week ago.

Lemons showed a further gain of 23 cents to an average auction price per box of $5.15. Volume was unchanged from the previous week.

The demand for lemons has been rather quiet although showing signs of improving. Valencia demand has been increasingly strong with the disappearance of deciduous fruit which has been in severe competition.

The hearing on the California-Arizona citrus marketing agreement order which has been going on here for three days shows that all orange growers and shippers are for some sort of regulation of shipments. They usually differ as to the means and amount of regulation necessary.

The growers' advisory committee of the California-Arizona citrus marketing agreement announced next week's prorate as follows: 1150 cars packed valencias for Southern California; 20 cars packed grapefruit from Southern California.

The California Fruit Growers exchange, commenting on the market as a whole, says:

"The market on California valencias during the past week has shown an advance of 15c to 25c per box on medium to large sizes but only a slight change on the extreme small sizes."

"Total volume of sales will be slightly lower than last week, particularly in the auction markets due to the effects of the Jewish holiday on Monday."

"Deciduous fruits are disappearing from fresh fruit channels and shippers anticipate further improvement in the demand for valencias."

"The market on California lemons continues strong with some improvement in prices on the smaller sizes. But the strongest demand continues on 360s and larger."

Orange averages per box for week, with comparative figures for last week, and for the corresponding weeks of 1934 and 1933 follow:

	This Week	Last Week	1934	1933

SWIFT RISE IN PENSION CLUBS BEAN PRICES

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12 (AP)—A swift rise in prices of beans brightened the business picture this week for growers and in the areas affected by fluctuations in the growers' incomes.

Quotations rose briskly for limas, baby limas and black eyes. These three varieties constitute about 60 per cent of the California output, and bring more benefit to the state through rising prices than would gains in numerous other varieties.

The upturn came in the face of an estimated California output of some 3,565,000 bags (100 pounds per bag) which was an increase over the estimate a month ago of around 200,000 bags. Dealers, however, were inclined to differ with the state crop reporters, and bid prices up on the belief weather conditions would decrease the eventual supply.

ALAMEDA MAN IS NAMED MASONIC HEAD FOR STATE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12 (AP)—Earl Warren, Alameda county district attorney, Friday was named grand master of California Masonry, to succeed Randolph V. Whiting of Sacramento, as the lodge closed its eighty-sixth annual convention.

Other officers elected are Rollie Miller, Los Angeles, deputy grand master; James T. Fraser, Eureka, senior grand warden; Leon O. Whitsett, San Francisco, junior warden; and John Weher, San Francisco, re-elected for the twenty-eighth time as grand secretary.

G. O. P. COMMITTEE OF COUNTY MEETS HERE ON OCT. 17

Members of the Orange county Republican central committee will meet Oct. 17 at 7:30 p. m. in the office of Harvey and Harvey, Santa Ana attorneys, according to Milburn Harvey, secretary of the organization.

Principal business to be transacted will be a report by Lloyd Banks on a recent convention of the Young Men's Republican clubs held in San Francisco. W. C. May, who has recently returned from a trip through the East and Midwest, will talk on business conditions in the sections he visited.

STINSON FACES SUIT FOR WAGES

John H. Stinson, Orange rancher, is name defendant in a suit started yesterday in superior court to collect $917.58, allegedly due Horace E. Petty as back wages.

The suit was filed by Edward L. Nolan, as chief of the division of labor statistics and law enforcement of the state department of industrial relations.

According to the complaint, the amount demanded represents the balance due for wages over a period of 15 months ending May 1936.

The complaint alleged that Petty had been employed as a ranch hand at a monthly salary of $60.

Sharpest Rise Since July Registered, Index Reveals

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity today registered its sharpest advance since July.

Boosted by big gains in automobile production, cotton mill activity, and freight movement, the index rose to 73.1, compared with 70.9 the previous week, and only 60.1 a year ago. The index is adjusted for seasonal variation and based on the 1929-30 average as 100.

Electric power production increased to a record high level, but its gain over the previous week was only of normal seasonal proportions, so the index for that factor was unchanged. Steel and residential building, registered the only decline, but they were slight and came after recent substantial gains.

Wall St. Briefs

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Favorable dividend changes the past week totaled 23 compared with 20 in the previous week, the Standard Statistics company reported today. There were five unfavorable changes against two the week before.

W. A. Patterson/ president of United Air Lines, reports the company is now carrying an average of 458,000 pieces of mail daily, a record high. During the past six months the company has flown 1298 tons of mail, an increase of approximately 40 per cent over a year ago.

SUNDOWN STORIES

By Mary Graham Bonner

It was almost time for the Puddle Muddlers to go back to Puddle Muddle, and they were becoming quite homesick for it. It was also about time for all the tent performances to be over.

But Willy Nilly had promised the people a concert. The crowds that came were greater than ever. Everyone by this time had heard about the animals who could understand every word that was spoken to them, and of the interesting little man who was their friend.

Quite A Concert
What a concert it was! Willy Nilly played his little violin, Rip beat the drum, which he carried on his back, by hitting it with his tail. The ducks, Christopher Columbus Crow and Top Notch whistled the tunes on reed instruments. Willy Nilly had made for them a very special place.

To be sure, Top Notch's ear for music was very bad and he made many mistakes, but so funny were his false notes that the audience could hardly stop laughing.

The bears beat the time by standing on their hind legs and clapping their front paws together and they joined often in a growling chorus.

Larger Crowds
In fact the Puddle Muddlers had to stay a little longer than they had planned as the concert was attracting such crowds.

But at last it was time to leave. "You've saved our show," Willy made it a tremendous success," said the owner, and the giant agreed "Here is a big bag of money for the work that you did, Willy Nilly, and for the clever work too of your animal friends!" It was so heavy Willy Nilly could hardly lift it.

chairman of the prayer circle, and highlights of the recent district meeting at Westminster were given by Mrs. Edith Grant Redford.

Tables at the pot-luck dinner were under direction of Miss Berta Armstrong, Miss Ruth Armstrong and Miss Louise Friedly.

To Prince George:

Regardless of your status as heir to the British throne, it's as one father to another that I say: "Congratulations—glad it's a boy!"

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Community Chest Donors:

You have the satisfaction of knowing you are good neighbors and that the money you have given and have pledged to give, is an investment in character-building and crime-prevention. It is a responsibility which rests on the entire community; that is why the chest plan distributes the giving over a large number of people instead of confining it to a few.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To the Chamber of Commerce:

Your efforts to keep the water question alive are to be commended. This, it seems to me, is a subject which any chamber situated in an agricultural county such as ours, should give its best efforts to. The farmer, whose prosperity must be assured before his trading center can flourish, often accuses his city neighbor of being unfriendly or of failing to understand farm problems. Often he is right. Water is by far the most important problem in Southern California. It still is unsolved in Orange county. The chamber, in appointing a committee to make new studies or to promote old ones, is taking a forward step. The farmer should and will appreciate it.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To D. W. Tubbs, Agricultural Commissioner:

Yours is a trying position during these days of citrus shipping. If you are lenient with the grower the complaint comes back that you are permitting granulated oranges to pass and that as a result of lax inspection the market is being ruined. If you stay strictly within the law and stop shipments having a greater percentage of granulation than the law tolerates, you are called unreasonable. Personally, I should say you have been doing an excellent job and that your duty is to enforce the law as it stands. If it isn't a good law, it won't be there very long. Orange county cannot afford to try to sell inferior fruit. The market is sensitive and choosy and doesn't need our fruit so badly that it has to accept dry oranges.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Orange County Water Users:

Those of you who have watched the proceedings of the past week must realize, if you never did before, something of the eternal conflict we would be a part of, should we follow the advice of those who would have us involved in the Mojave river project. Both Riverside and San Bernardino counties are at swords points in their effort to grab the Mojave surplus. Both would suck Orange county into the fight, each hoping Orange county influence would be helpful to that particular side. If Orange county got any water at all through such an alliance, it would be after the two upper counties had supplied themselves. The greatest surplus federal engineers see in the Mojave is 40,000 acre feet. That figure happens to be the overdraft which Orange county alone has at this very moment.

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Joseph P. Smith, City Councilman:

Few people in Santa Ana realize the amount of time and thought you have devoted to our new city hall. When the structure is completed, a great many of the little things that make an office building satisfactory will have been included in the city hall. In all probability, they would have been left out if you had not been on the scene day after day to watch the building grow, and see to it that those things which are essential were included. Some of the changes made have cost a little more money, but in the long run, those changes are going to prove well worth the cost. In many other instances, your valuable experience in such matters, and your close attention to details has saved the city a great deal of unnecessary expense. We are all for you, Joe, and let me say, "thanks a million for a darn good piece of work."

COL. V. ORANGE.

To Dr. Sydney Raubenheimer:

I was glad to see you compliment the Parent-Teacher association for its excellent cooperation with the schools of our present day, in your talk before the Orange County Teachers Institute yesterday. But I do not agree with your assertion that there is very little culture in the home. We may have changed our way of living; some of our tastes, too, have given way to better ones, thank goodness, but my own idea of the situation is that there is more culture taught in the average home today than there was a generation ago. I heard a 14-year-old boy address an audience of more than 100 Community Chest workers at a luncheon this week. He made a better speech than most of his adult listeners could have made. Maybe he had special advantages, but my notion of it is he is typical of thousands of bright boys and girls who are being properly reared in Christian homes like many we have in Santa Ana. I know a waitress who works all day to earn bread and butter for herself and little girl and then spends most of the evening helping the little girl work her geometry. Keep the schools as good and clean as the average home is, Dr. Raubenheimer, and we'll get along.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—One of those muggy mornings when the city is hung heavily with that crepuscular mist. And those doleful far-away croaks of the fog horns do not lighten the gloom. On the street below motored seem faint-eyed goblins in the chalkiness. You think of London, fog, adventure. Things like this: A furtive figure, collar up, pushing the bell in Harley street. . . . A stifled scream and sudden splash at a taxi without license plate swinging in to a bank's curb. . . . A cough-racked old miser in his basement hovel and greedy eyes piercing the blackness.

On such mornings many city dwellers are denied the vistas of those little interludes when they swing around in their desk chairs for a view of neighbors in surrounding windows. Through the haze, for instance, I cannot see the stenographer with whom for five years I've exchanged an occasional wave.

Or the mustache-fixer two windows above who begins his gallant twirls before a pocket mirror at exactly 12 noon. Or the sad-eyed miss with prematurely white hair and black sleeve guards. There are many O. Henry plots in the people we see daily but never meet in New York. But so few O. Henrys.

Fun in a lift: I promised to call for my wife at the hair dressing salon of a department store. Of the elevator operator I inquired: "Where's the beauty parlor?" "From back in the car a voice jeered: 'He's come too late!'"

Irene Castle's husband, Frederick McLaughlin, has always abhorred green vegetables. But all his life has been fond of the starchy potato dished in its various versions. Friends often warned him he should switch to greener fare. Not long ago he felt very well and went to a hospital for observation. He was found sound, but what pleased him especially was the parting advice of a medic: "There is only one diet rule for you. Keep off green vegetables as much as possible."

Then there's Russell Crouse who decided the place for him to write a play was away from the distracting clamor of the metropolis. After much scouting he found the ideal retreat—a boisterous cottage, a house of heart's desire miles from civilization's disturbing uproar. But in 24 hours the twittering birds had become so upsetting he rushed back to the familiar noises. And finished his play with a whirlwind flourish.

Wilmer Allison, national tennis champion, has the customary fly in his hero ointment. A lot of folk in his state of Texas still think tennis is a silly game. And they'd be happier if he'd shuck that Wilmer for something like Slim or Chuck. Example: I spent a single winter in Houston—spats, malacca and all—but didn't get away without being dubbed Buckskin.

I have heard it said the French language cannot be mastered after 50, but I know a notable exception. A long-invalid lady on the wintry side of 60 decided to while the tedious with daily lessons by a French maid. The pupil did not know a single French verb and not more than a dozen words. Yet in 11 months she was rattling it off like a veteran.

The same lady was citing an example of typical French thrift. Her maid was passing through the kitchen and saw a colored cook slicing three peaches for Madam's breakfast. She picked up the peels with a shrug and weighed the slices. Next morning she showed the cook how exactly the same amount by weight could be sliced from two peaches by a more delicate process of paring.

In the rue moutarde, back of the Pantheon and one of the oldest streets in Paris, is a spic and span boudoirier the size of a piano box where Lisle Bell and I used to wander stargazing summer evenings for the glass of milk and flaky croissant. The proprietress, one of those raw-boned Britons definitely mustached, told us—or rather told Lisle in French—her net profits rarely ran over 5 francs a day, at that time about 30 cents. But she was in a position to retire any time. This virtue saved France after the Franco-Prussian war and has been largely responsible for her survival since the world conflict. I've often watched aristocratic French families dining. Invariably every plate is sopped clean. Gallic garbage cans hold only tea and coffee grounds and the thinnest of vegetable parings. Not the "swell swill" of the popular (Copyright, 1935, McNaught Syndicate)

GOLDEN AFTERGLOW
DENVER. (AP)—A decade ago an aging Denver churchman comforted a lonely English immigrant girl who lay critically ill. She recovered, then, but died recently after an emergency operation. Her will, filed for probate, left the $10,500 estate to the girlman, the Rev. John W. Hudson, 83.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Confusion and the reports received here indicate that Mussolini was not bluffing when he snapped his fingers at the threat of an economic and financial boycott by the league.

The real fact is that neither boycott is of any immediate threat to Italy.

A financial boycott already has been in force against Italy as far as London and New York money markets are concerned. To offset this, Mussolini has hoarded war chest of $500,000,000 in gold and about the same amount in foreign currencies. He figures this will be enough. And if the war is short it will be.

The economic boycott is even less worrisome—the simple reason that nations always are ready to sell but not to buy. Mussolini knew this when he snapped his fingers at the league.

Already his premonition has proved correct. Switzerland has intimated privately to league authorities that it would not enforce a trade boycott against Italy. Italy is its best market. A boycott would mean cutting off about 75 per cent of Swiss exports and financial ruin to many industries. Austria, Hungary and even Yugoslavia are in the same fix. The league—now finding Italy a lucrative market. In need of war supplies, Mussolini has reduced tariff barriers to Yugoslavia and is buying large quantities of wheat, pork, lumber.

Probably these countries will accept the economic boycott in theory, but ignore it in fact. That is why the British idea of a naval blockade to enforce the boycott makes Mussolini see red. And that is why the French have been so loath to go along with the British on a blockade, except at the price of aid against Germany.

AMBASSADOR ROSSO
ITALY'S ambassador, Augusto Rosso, finally has laid at rest a long and poignant worry. Cause of concern was not the Ethiopian controversy, but a much more personal matter.

He was fearful that when he was Rome to confer with his chief, Mussolini would raise the question of Rosso's unmarried status. Il Duce's dictum that Fascist officials must get married or get out long has disturbed him. Before the conference with Mussolini, Rosso asked counsel of a friend. "What shall I do if he raises the question? I would like to tell him it is my private business."

"No, no, do not say that!" his friend advised. "Simply say you are thinking about it." Rosso came out of the conference smiling, and sailed back to Washington reassured. Mussolini did not even mention Mrs. Rosso. He was too busy with Ethiopia.

MUSSOLINI
EVEN hard-boiled diplomats, accustomed to an imperialistic view of the international horizon, are intensely bitter against Mussolini.

Their attitude is not influenced by any sympathy for Ethiopia. They shrug their shoulders and point out that the law of conquest still rules, that weaker countries must fall to stronger ones. But what they cannot forgive Mussolini is starting his conquest at this moment—when Europe is

One Man's Opinion

By Duncan Ellsworth Clark

EDITOR'S NOTE—Here is an informative, analytical daily feature on current topics. The opinions expressed in this column are not necessarily the same as those held by The Journal.

Isolation Is Punishment For Mussolini
MUSOLINI is going through the first painful experience of sliding from power. He finds himself in dangerous isolation, the turning point in a despot's career. A rising meteor on the international horizon always bolsters his own ascent with alliances, coalitions and agreements. He rides to the crest of splendor on the tacit consent of other peoples, no less than on the vociferous approval of his own.

When other nations turn their backs he is already headed for oblivion. IL DUCE has carefully cultivated the approval of other peoples. Beneath his blustering, designed for home consumption, he has appeared frequently on the air and in the press, in persuasive appeals to the American people and to his more immediate neighbors.

He is clamping a tight censorship on all opposing expression he has widened the avenues for his raving himself and fascism before the world.

HE smoothed out the troubles with the Vatican, a problem of 60 years' standing. He attempted to come to agreement with Hitler over the difficult Austrian situation. The two dictators apparently parted with much mutual respect.

He came to an understanding with Premier Laval after much friction had developed over rival French and Italian pretensions in the Mediterranean. He made considerable progress toward friendship with the Little Entente on the occasion of King Alexander's visit, which terminated in the as-

SKINNY SKRIBBLES

Around and About Town
With C. F. SKIRVIN

Columbus day. Well, Chris, I've been waiting for you for a long time. Every sailor has his day, but since you were here "Barnacle Bill" has had your affairs with Isabella, but you gave us some ideas yourself, and you will be surprised when you find out what's been going on in Hollywood.

When that little triple expedition of yours started from Palos for some place, you never had the slightest idea that your discovery would some day be observed by closing of banks and state and federal and city offices in the country of your discovery. You were a good salesman, and proved the old story that it is the woman who pays and pays and pays. I don't know how much money the queen put up for your water taxi hitch-hiking, but when she had to throw in the family jewels it looks to me like you had the old girl about broke.

Anyway, I'm glad they didn't throw you overboard. If they had maybe I'd have been born in some other country, or not at all. I've often wondered what kind of a story you put up to Isabella to get a second expedition financed. I've never been able to explain the situation to my own satisfaction except on the theory that the prettiest flowers are always on the other side of the hill, and you kept going.

Why, Chris, we won't open the stock market on your account. That statement is ambiguous, but it's true. There is no allusion intended that you are broke, or that you have an overdraw. It's just out of respect for a good guy who had the courage to believe there was something beyond the Alps besides Genoa, and a few other towns. I've tried to make my bankers believe that you were a good financier, because you got money and a prospect and took what you started in this country.

I think Isabella did a good day's work when she persuaded the king to sign on the dotted line. That started something—three ships sailed for the country which lies beyond. Why, even Rex Beach hasn't the imagination you had. I'll say you started something when you discovered America. Since you were here we got a political party headed by an elephant, another by a jackass (I'm speaking of emblems) and there is a strange animal now roaming the hills called the Epic. At one time a specie made its appearance in Kansas called a Populist, but I understand it is now extinct. When you make your next visit bring over another deck—we have a New Deal on.

Why, God bless you, since you were here we invented a bridge game which keeps mother away from home almost every afternoon and part of the night. We've repealed the prohibition law and can now bow to elbow from 3 to 5 with the fens. Looks like it won't be long now before they'll crowd us out of our normal position. And, say, did you ever hear anything about this game of golf? It's for tired business men who wear themselves out waiting for the time to get to a country club. Say, Chris, you ain't seen nothing yet.
